Two inter-related lectures on bronze sculpture will be presented in the Cleveland area in early April by one of the world's leading authorities in the field, Dr. Jennifer Montagu, who is affiliated with the Warburg Institute in London.

The first, scheduled for the Cleveland Museum of Art on Wednesday, April 3, at 8:30 p.m., is entitled "Alessandro Algardi and the Roman Bronze." The second, "Florentine Baroque Bronzes" will be given at the Allen Art Building at Oberlin College on Friday, April 5, at 4:30 p.m.

Dr. Montagu is an expert on the reappearance of bronze sculpture during the Renaissance and Baroque periods. A widely published author, she is in the United States for the "Twilight of the Medici" exhibition which opens at the Detroit Institute of Art on March 27.
